Missioner of Art Returns From a Successful Tour

Thomas Shrewsbury Parkhurst, dean of the artist colony at Carmel Highlands, is home from his travels, exhibitions and lectures in the east.

During his six months' absence he has shown his paintings to large and enthusiastic groups in Toledo and Columbus, Ohio, and Pittsburgh, Pa.

One result of his tour was the purchase of fourteen of his Carmel coast paintings to brighten the homes of eastern art lovers.

He also visited and lectured in Cleveland, Buffalo, New York and Chicago.

While in New York Mr. Parkhurst met Armin Hansen and William Ritschel and was highly impressed with the exhibited work of both artists.

In a number of the cities which Mr. Parkhurst visited he gave lectures on Carmel, illustrating his talks with seventy-two lantern slides.

George Elmer Brown, A. N. A., of Provincetown, Mass., whom Parkhurst met and refers to as "a great artist and a great teacher," who was in Spain all last summer with a large class, made inquiries concerning Carmel, with the idea of bringing a class here during the summer. Parkhurst encouraged him to do so.

Though highly appreciating the honor of being suggested as head of the art section of the Monterey Peninsula Industrial and Art Exposition next September, Mr. Parkhurst, owing to press of work, will be unable to act He suggests that Armin Hansen will fill the position most satisfactorily.

Do We Want A City Manager?

There is a strong undercurrent of feeling prevailing in Carmel just now that favors the adoption of the city manager plan of municipal government.

The plan is in successful operation in a large number of California and eastern cities. The argument of the proponents of the plan is that, under the unsalaried trustee form of administration, with its various commissionerships, "what is everybody's business, is nobody's business." It is claimed that a salaried city manager would more than earn his pay by what he can save.

Does Your Net Income Interest Uncle Sam?

The income tax drive for the collection of taxes for the year 1922 is in full swing at the office of John P. McLaughlin, internal revenue collector for this district, with headquarters at San Francisco.

It is estimed that over 200,000 individuals will file returns this year, this would make the rate about 10,000 a day.

Every unmarried person whose net income for last year was $1,000 or over must make returns to the collector. Married persons are allowed exemption in double this amount.

The mildest penalty for failure to file returns on or before March 15 is a fine of $1000 and an assessment of 25 per cent of the amount due.

Mrs. Susan C. Porter is visiting in Santa Barbara for several days this week.

Carmel Chamber of Commerce Will Promote Publicity

The Carmel Chamber of Commerce has gone on record as being in favor of joining the proposed Monterey Peninsula, Inc., to be made up of representatives of the Monterey, Pacific Grove and Carmel Chambers of Commerce, the Peninsula Exposition and Del Monte. The new organization will have ten members, and has as its main object the placing of the publicity and advertising of the communities of Monterey Peninsula in the hands of a central body.

It was a largely attended meeting, that of our Carmel Chamber of Commerce, and when it was shown that through proper publicity this section could be made a great winter resort as well as a great summer resort, approval of the new body was unanimous.

Another matter about which there was little or no controversy was what to do with the space on Ocean avenue between the concrete roadways. The chamber recommended to the city board of trustees the following plan:

That in the two blocks between Lincoln street and San Carlos highway a strip five feet wide be planted to low-growing shrubbery, with open spaces at intervals to permit pedestrians to cross the street. The space on both sides of the five feet to be utilized for parking cars. The two blocks between Junipero street and San Carlos highway are to be left as they are now, owing to the presence of the garage, stage line headquarters and the soldier memorial. The entire space to be utilized for parking cars.

In the matter of having a "Carmel day" while the students' military training camp is on at Del Monte, July 28 to August 26, Major Joseph J. Mora addressed the chamber on behalf of Col. J. V. Smith, who will be in command of the camp. It was the unanimous sentiment of the meeting that such a day be arranged for, and a committee will be appointed to meet with other organizations to map out a program.

Law Decrees That Carmel Chickens Roost at Home

No longer may chickens and other fowl roam the streets of my city Carmel. This according to an ordinance read at an adjourned meeting of the city trustees last Tuesday evening. The penalty for allowing hens and roosters to wander from the home lot is a fine up to $100 or 30 days in the hoosgow, or both—in other words, violation is a misdemeanor.

The matter of the Carpenter street vacation applied for by Paul Flanders at a previous meeting was, after discussion and the reading of a protest from Mrs. Nelson, deferred until the regular meeting in March.

The time fixed for filing protests to accepting the work on Ocean avenue having expired, and no such protest being made, the trustees ordered $16,717.50 paid to Contractor Sydney Ruthven, the balance of about $7,000 to be paid in thirty-five days.

The question of landscaping the center space on Ocean avenue and the recommendation of the Carmel chamber of commerce in the matter was referred to the city planning commission.

Piano Fund on Ascending Scale

The plan to acquire by public subscription a first-class piano for the Carmel Club of Arts and Crafts is meeting with continued support.

The Botke etching, on display at Cabbages and Kings has attracted much attention and to date highest bid for the picture is $40.

Two ten-dollar checks have been received lately—one from Mrs. James V. Short, the other from Agnes M. Kerr, a guest of Miss Catherine Morgan.

Additions to the one-dollar-a-month for-eighteen-months list includes Mr. and Mrs. P. L. McDonald and Miss Clara N. Kellogg.

Sunny Tennessee to Carmel-by-the-Sea

Knoxville, Tenn., January 29, 1923.

Mr. W. L. Overstreet, Editor, Pine Cone,

After reading your description of Carmel-by-the-Sea, I was inspired to write the poem below. I have always had a longing for California and now I have an increased longing for, not only the state, but also Carmel. My compliments to you, sir, and I hope that I shall have the pleasure of meeting you some day. If "lady luck" stays with me I will be in Carmel by next fall.

Very truly yours,
R. E. COPELAND.

I dreamed of a land, a beautiful land,
With flowers so gorgeous and rare.
Where mountains like silent sentinels stand,
A watch over mortals down there.
Where the blue of the skies and the green of the trees,
Surpass the great painter's art.
Where soft winds sigh and the sea gulls fly,
And songs of birds thrill the heart.
I sang with the birds, as I dreamed,
Of the place I'd like to be.
Tho' I've ne'er been there I shall journey some day,
To Carmel-by-the-Sea.

It's a glorious land, a fairyland;
That is, if dreams are true.
A spot created by God's own hand,
A touch of paradise, too.
I could see there a palace of riches untold,
In my dream I could not its beauty unfold.
I could see the dull glow of gold in the west,
Fade slowly away as the sun went to rest.
I could see giant pines 'amid gardens fair,
Wherein nature's perfumes pervaded the air.
I'll cast aside care and some time I shall flee
To the land of my dreams, "Carmel-by-the-Sea."

Real Estate Signs Will Be Abolished by Carmel Dealers

An informal meeting of the real estate dealers was held at the city hall last Monday evening. Definite action was taken looking toward the removal of all "For Rent" and "For Sale" signs on Carmel property.

If the plan is adhered to, this action is a distinct innovation, and will go a long way toward making Carmel and vicinity a section of "Signless Scenery."

Commenting on the foregoing, the Monterey Daily Herald says:

"Real estate dealers in Carmel are noted for their success in selling real estate. Carmel today with its building program is the proof.

"The same dealers who have made Carmel now meet together and decide that 'for sale' signs on property do not sell property as effectively as property without signs.

"People who enjoy scenery unmolested may well applaud their action from that point of view. Business men know that property will sell more readily and prospective buyers be less confused by a multitude of arrogant opportunities as a result of this sensible action."

New Apparatus Is Out of City's Debt

As the result of the splendid work done by the new fire engine recently acquired by the city at last Sunday's conflagration, there is a general demand for a material reduction in fire insurance premiums here.

It was only because we had such an efficient piece of fire-fighting apparatus and such a hard-working, self-sacrificing group of firemen that an entire block of business places and dwellings were not destroyed, when fire broke out in the Carmel Bakery last Sunday afternoon.

The bakery and the building were almost a total loss, and as a result Messrs. Huseman & Wetzel will be obliged to take a vacation for a month or two, until the new bakery is erected by Ernest Schweninger.

The bakery proprietors had no insurance, but Schweninger was amply protected.

Another Musical Society Concert at Pacific Grove

The Pacific Grove Musical Society will give its third concert next Wednesday evening at the Pacific Grove grammar school. This society was organized in the fall of last year to foster community music. An orchestra of twenty-five instruments and a chorus of thirty-five voices were formed, the orchestra under the direction of L. E. M. Cosmey of Pacific Grove and the chorus under Thomas Vincent Cator of Carmel.

The December and January concerts were extremely successful. The community music idea is gaining much headway over the whole country and it is gratifying to discover how much talent is available if it is gone after.

Invitations have been extended to the city and chamber of commerce officials of Monterey, Carmel and Salinas to attend the coming concert. It will be well worth while for others also to make it a point to be there.

Mrs. C. F. Hoffman and son have returned to their home in Oakland.

Pine Cone's Log of Literature & Art

Beneath the surface more than 200 feet among the stones of the ancient river bed which was covered by the lava flow which created Springfield Flat, the famous gold-bearing area at Columbia, near Sonora, Cal., a slab of granite, bearing hieroglyphics believed to have been carved by a representative of a prehistoric race, has been found by a miner. The stone is of irregular shape, twelve inches long by approximately nine inches wide. The characters extending across its face are from three to four inches high and are regular in shape. Archeologists at the University of California are endeavoring to decipher the inscription on the stone.

Bret Harte's favorite resting place on Mount Diablo is to be marked with a memorial tablet, according to plans that are being considered by the Mount Diablo State Park Council, as announced by Harry G. Williams, president of the council.

"It is not generally known that in the early '60's Bret Harte was a tutor to the children of a family that lived at Alamo, but such was the case," said President Williams, "and that may account for the legend that he was a school teacher in California.

"That Contra Costa county made a deep impression on Harte's mind is shown by the fact that three of his works were inspired by his experiences in that region. The titles of these books are: 'A First Family of Tassajara,' 'In Carquinez Woods,' and 'Legends of Mount Diablo.' In other works by Harte the scenery of Contra Costa county is described."

Cosmopolitan Productions has in process of arrangement a remarkable series of historic costume plays in which Marian Davies will be the star. No screen favorite ever had so pretentious a program planned for her. Her success as the heroine of "When Knighthood Was in Flower" has made her the logical artist to enact these historical roles.

A Pine Cone correspondent at Hollywood writes that the plays to be screened include "Hearts Courageous," wherein Anne rides to warn Patrick Henry of the approach of the British; "La Belle Marseilles," in which Miss Davies will be Jean, wife of Marquis de Tallemont; she will be the heroine in Charles Major's story, "Yolanda;" in "The Forest Lovers" Miss Davies will portray a forlorn forest waif; "Alice of Old Vincences" will give opportunity for some fine work; and as Patricia O'Day in "Little Old New York," the Manhattan of a hundred years ago will be faithfully portrayed.

From Tokio comes the information that Japanese actors and actresses, by combined action, have won two reforms which will benefit the public and reformers alike. The clacker, or hired applauder, whose charges were a heavy tax on the actors, has been abolished and performances are to be limited to six hours, except twice a year, when they may be extended to eight hours. In old days a performance would last from morning till night and women spectators would change dress during the performance. Even up to the present, tea, cakes and at least one meal were partaken of either in the dining room, if it be a foreign built theatre, or squatting on the mats without leaving one's seat, if it be the old style theatre.

Splashes and Splutter

In the "Delineator" for March is published an absorbing story, "The Raft," by Grace Sartwell Mason.

"Science and the Soul," a most interesting and speculative article by Dr. Vernon L. Kellogg, appears in the January "Yale Review."

It is not generally known, but true nevertheless, that the Irish poet, William Butler Yeates, is a member of Erin's parliament.

David S. Green, 83, who served as a "cub" pilot under Mark Twain and was said by friends to have furnished material from which the writer drew his descriptions of Mississippi river life, died in Louisville, Ky.

A new edition of Mrs. C. Halsted Yates' dog book, "Ye Dogge Lovers' Daily Reminder," is shortly to come from the press. It will be on sale at the Seven Arts here. A most acceptable gift to anyone who loves animals.

At a date to be announced next month the fourth in the Artist Series of concerts in Monterey is to take place. Irene Pavloska, messo-soprano, will be the artist, and because she has been heard here before and made friends with her voice and charming personality, it is predicted that she will draw the banner audience of the series.

Schnabel, Pianist Receives Ovation

First came Florence MacBeth, then Louis Persinger and Anna David, then came—last Wednesday night—Artur Schnabel, and the greatest of these is Schnabel.

We are not in a position to confirm the statemont that "Schnabel is the greatest pianist in the world," but after his wonderful performence of last Wednesday evening in Monterey we doubt not that the statement is well founded.

Mastery of the keyboard all great pianists have. Schnabel has a something more than that. It is an ability to put life and soul and spirit into his interpretations. To listen, and to see his fingers glide over the keys was a revelation in itself. He seemed to caress and woo the wonderful tones from his instrument, and he did it in such a manner that there appeared to be no effort, It was as if one gently stroked a cat and the response was a contented purr.

Possibly the only real sincere tribute one can pay to Artur Schnabel is to say that he is a real artist, the kind that is born, not made.

Humane Home for Homeless Animals

Think of this! A place to leave your dog and cat when you go away. Also a temporary refuge for the homeless cat or dog that you are unable to care for. A boarding kennel and shelter under the auspices of the Humane Society of Carmel has been opened by the Misses Nash and Bassett, at their place in Carmel Woods, just a step from the Serra monument.

What to do with Fido or Tabby when a trip is under consideration has been a problem with us Carmelites for a long time, and now that need has been met. The refuge will offer intelligent and loving care at reasonable prices, with special rates for permanent guests. The home will be sponsored by the Humane society and will be supported by membership dues and voluntary contributions. Carmelites should encourage this good work and join, whether as honorary or active members. The dues are the same, one dollar a year. You can leave your name and your dollar at the Pine Cone office.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

On February 24, 1863, the Territory of Arizona was organized, with the capitol at Phoenix. Forty-nine years later, 1912, the territory was made a state by act of Congress.

HOW NOW, SIR WILLIAM?

In 1671, Sir William Berkeley, royal governor of the colony of Virginia, said in a report to the lord commissioners of foreign plantations: "I thank God there are no free schools nor printing, and I hope we shall not have these hundred years; for learning has brought disobedience, and heresy, and sects into the world, and printing has divulged them, and libels against the best government. God keep us from both."

There are a great many men in the country today who feel as Berkeley felt. They do not say so; oh, no. Nevertheless, were it not for the printer and publisher of today many an unholy scheme would be put over.

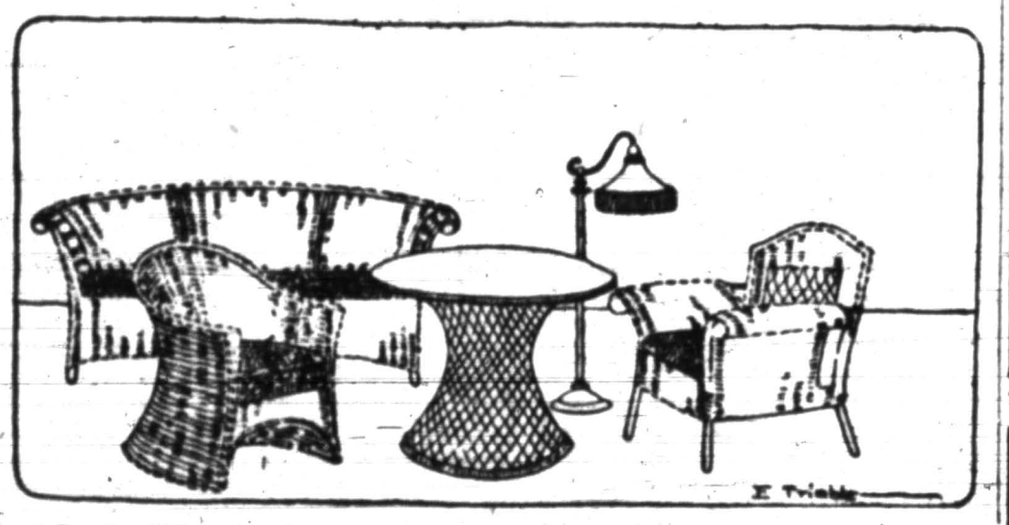
As a matter of fact, lawyers, not printers, have dominated American legislation since early colonial days—and what a mess they have made of it! The criminal laws of the country and the states are full of technicalities that lawyers have invented and put into the statutes. Our constitutions and civil statutes are full of "trip-up" provisions that unprincipled lawyers have "sneaked" into them.

KEEP EXPENSES DOWN

The statement that many American cities, both large and small, are living beyond their income is neither new nor surprising. The trend is general. Of course, with growing population, which involves many necessary utilities, outgo frequently runs income closely. But bond issues and special taxes should be few and far between.

Cities, being only groups of individuals, reflect the characteristics of the people. They know that this is an "era of extravagance," but continue in the old course. In analyzing the income of municipalities, it is found that more than 61 per cent comes from the property tax. As the weight on this source of income increases, the tax goes up. It is well that throughout the country there is a general agitation over high taxes. Perhaps, in this way, attention may be directed to the question of economy.

REED OR FIBER FURNITURE VERY PRACTICAL



Reed or fiber furniture is not only good for the porch or sun room, but is equally suitable for the year-round living room. A comfortable settee, several substantial chairs and a cunning round table will cost just about half the amount that one would spend for the usual living room furniture. The pieces may be bought in the natural color and stained or painted to harmonize with any color scheme.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Byrnes, their furniture arrived, will move into their new home in a few days. They have as guests for an extended stay Mr. and Mrs. Frank Landridge of Chicago. Mr. Landridge is a prominent realtor of the Windy City. Carmel has "got" them.

Carmel's pioneer building contractor, M. J. Murphy, is busy as ever. With the completion of several contracts recently, he is prepared to start work on a dwelling for Mrs. M. T. Brewer on Dolores, the Towe-house in the east Carmel forest, and a home in Carmel Woods for John Bogt

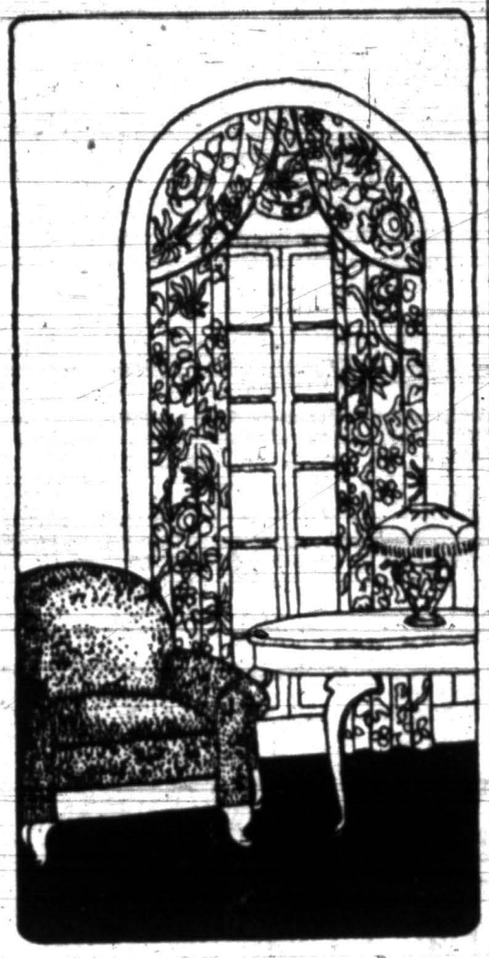
TO BE USED WITH THE HIGH CEILINGS



In a large room with high ceilings and French windows, massive furniture and large-patterned hangings may be used. The room shown in the sketch draws its inspiration from the blue-and-gold Chinese jar which has been used for the lamp base. The shade of blue chiffon over gold silk is fringed with the two colors. The hangings repeat the color note.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS

A PRODIGIOUS WORKER

J. Allan Dunn, author of "Rimrock Trail," was born in the city of London and came to the Western Hemisphere in 1898 to report the Spanish-American war for an English newspaper. At the close of that struggle he formed a syndicate connection, made his headquarters in California and covered the Pacific Coast, Hawaii and the Orient as correspondent until 1907. In the latter year he took the editorship of Sunset Magazine of San Francisco.

Adventuring in war, on the seas, in strange countries and particularly the beauties and colorful characteristics of the western part of the United States had put something into his blood that could not be requited by an editorial chair. After a few months he resigned and ever since has been a traveler and writer of the West. He has written excellent hunting and fishing stories, splendid descriptions of Yosemite and other natural wonders, and many virile novels of mountain, plain, desert and sea life. Prominent among his books are: "The Petals of Lao Tsze," "Jim Morse, South Sea Trader," "Turquoise Canyon," "Dead Man's Gold," "Jim Morse, Gold Seeker," "A Man to His Mate," "The Man Trap," "The Girl of Ghost Mountain" and "Rimrock Trail." Although an adopted son, he is very proud to call himself an American and westerner.

THRILLERS HIS SPECIALTY

If anyone has written more stories of the thrilling type than Randall Parrish, we don't know who he is. Some years ago, before the Texas Trail had become completely obliterated and while portions of Kansas were still "a dark and bloody ground," Parrish went to that state as a young graduate from law college. He didn't practice long; newspaper work had more attractions for him. He followed it for several years, and some twenty or more years ago began writing novels. Many of his stories have been about the West.

He has a fondness for clean, young, upstanding heroes, and for placing them in perilous positions where they will have to fight their way out. Gosh! some of the fights in those Parrish books! There is generally a charming girl whom the hero meets and falls in love with quite naturally, without any of the "gooey" accompaniments or "sex stuff" which so many authors introduce. Although the West is his favorite, sometimes he stages his plots in other sections. This one is laid in Chicago, a place in which anything can happen—and which pretty nearly does in "The Case and the Girl."

A CUP RUNNING OVER

No one who had not mixed on terms of intimacy with rich and poor, who had not gone through variegated experiences and who had not sampled the joys of life and gazed into the depths of its sorrows, could have written such a story as "The Custard Cup;" because it is life—principally as lived by the submerged and made supportable only by optimism. A writer of too pronounced a psychology and too little human experience, given the same background, would have seen only the shadows and would have produced a distressingly morbid and untrue picture. But Florence Bingham Livingston, who has had an unusual contact with humanity and practical affairs, as will be noted from the brief sketch of her life printed on another page, has splashed her canvas with colors so bright and pleasing that few shadows are left—only enough to make necessary contrasts.

Recovers Timber.

For recovering sunken timbers a grappling device has been invented in Sweden that remains open when lowered into water, but closes as it is raised.

Ministers to Foolish Fad.

One woman in London is stated to have accumulated a comfortable fortune by running a "beauty parlor" for the pet dogs of fashionable society.

A thorough overhauling of Monterey county's government through an exhaustive inquiry by experts, whose findings would be incorporated in the new county government bill to be put through at the present session of the legislature, was the tentative plan given favorable consideration by the board of supervisors in conference with Assemblyman C. C. Baker at an informal meeting last week.

We Are Grateful

We take this means of expressing to all, and especially to the Carmel Fire Department, our appreciation of their efforts to conserve our property at last Sunday's fire.

Though we suffered a loss of approximately $2,000, we know that were it not for the efforts of the men and efficiency of the new fire engine our loss would have been much greater.

And we have learned that our friends are without number.
